The Center on Aging at the University of Miami's Miller School of Medicine is conducting a study to better understand how state-of-the-art videophone technology can be used to reduce stress and burden and enhance the quality of life of family caregivers of Alzheimer's and memory disorder patients. This study is being sponsored by the Langeloth Foundation and the University of Miami's Center on Aging.

You can participate in this project:

- If you are of African-American, Hispanic or Haitian origin.
- If you are a caregiver to an older adult with memory problems
- If you are 21 years of age or older
- If you have an active telephone line
- If you plan to remain living in Dade or Broward counties for at least six months

This study will be held in your home and you will be compensated for any interview time. If you are interested in participating in this study, please call:
